

Writing For Publication

Workshop Description

This three hour group-work format provides advice, encouragement and confidence for us to create / recreate an article for publication. The program is designed to help us overcome the productive procrastination, that prevents us from writing and the endless perfecting, that prevents us from submitting. Both novice and seasoned writes can benefit from this workshop, that is based on the highly successful Writing Your Journal Article In 12 Weeks workbook by Wendy Belcher. Wendy is offering her workbook at a discount for all of our participants.

Our group facilitator, Deborah Sims, a midwife and perinatal mental health researcher will be working on her own manuscript as part of this workshop. Please bring along to the group your rough-draft abstract and some results or findings that you would like to publish. We will work together to develop the; introduction, results, discussion and conclusion. We will finish with some simple tasks to strengthen our article structure and complete our dynamic and focused article ready for submission.

Presented by

Deborah J Sims RN, RM, Cert. Child and Family Health, Ma (Mid), PhD (Nursing)

Deborah is a midwife and child and family health nurse with 35 years of health care experience in Australia and USA. She has contributed to eight perinatal mental health research studies, including her Ma (Midwifery) study that explored postnatal psychosocial assessment and her PhD (nursing) that examined mental health, self-efficacy and early parenting support for new mothers. For the past 3 years Deborah has facilitated the 12 Weeks To Publication group program, at University of Technology Sydney, where she enjoys supporting and encouraging research candidates and faculty members to share their skills and help each other so that their important evidence can be published.
